Staff Code Of Conduct

Purpose

The purpose of the La Trobe College Australia Staff Code of Conduct is to set out behaviour and practices which promote a positive culture and constructive working relationships between staff, students, and visitors to the College - including volunteers and work experience students. It defines the standards of conduct that are required to maintain ethical behaviour and practices and is an expression of La Trobe College Australia's values.

This code of conduct has been developed in consultation with staff to ensure that it encompasses issues that arise in the performance of their duties or activities. Accordingly, it will provide a guide to understanding their rights as well as their responsibilities and resolving issues which may arise whilst performing their duties or activities. Failure to abide by this Code may result in disciplinary action or dismissal.

La Trobe College Australia and Navitas policies are referred to throughout this code and staff may obtain full copies of these from either the staff intranet (La Trobe College Australia policies) or Policy Central on the Navitas Infonet (Navitas policies).

To assist staff, this Code is arranged into the following sections:

- Professional conduct
- Use of La Trobe College Australia property, information and resources
- Personal conduct
- Compliance with legal requirements

It is important to note that conflicts of interests may be actual or perceived. Perceived conflicts of interest exist where it may be perceived that a staff member's private interests are at odds with their La Trobe College Australia responsibilities.

La Trobe College Australia staff are expected to declare potential conflicts of interest between their private and/or financial interests and their responsibilities at the College.

La Trobe College Australia staff should not accept gifts where there is an actual or perceived connection between the receipt of the gift and the performance of duties. However, it is acknowledged that staff will receive gifts on occasion from sources such as agents or students.

To alleviate the perceived conflict of interests that may arise from gifts, staff are required to register gifts they receive where the value of that gift is above $100.
